CANTINA AZUL

Cantina Azul is a carefully crafted tequila created by two passionate longstanding industry professionals from Connecticut. With over 50 combined years' experience crafting quality spirits and beverage programs coast to coast and creating successful high-end restaurants, Brian Williams and Bill Driggs were looking to bring a quality product to market that was both attainable and versatile. Cantina Azul offers character without sacrifice. It has a long finish with lingering notes of fresh agave, black pepper, nutty undertones, and a fresh captivating aroma. It has characteristics for both cocktails and for sipping on its own.

Our goal is to bring forth a product that is tequila forward, we want you to taste the tequila, with minimal intervention from the fields to the bottle. The ability to be functional in cocktail programs and proudly consumed on its own were always the parameters we sought to achieve. Keeping it reasonably priced as well makes it even more attractive for cocktail programs.

While a diffuser is used in the extraction process, no chemicals were used to reduce the PH levels and speed up the cooking time of the Agave. We just increased the cooking time.

Using modern distilling practices, it is tequila forward with NO additives used to achieve our desired taste profile. The result being a blend of predominantly Highland Agave, with a smaller percentage of Lowland Agave, which we curated at the distillery. Artisanal character in a modern style. This is a perfect tequila for upscale restaurants that care about their cocktail programs. And with the pricing we have worked hard to achieve, it can be a very profitable product for the distributor.

In one small 68 seat Mexican restaurant in Connecticut, that has garnered national attention for its margaritas, we go through 14-15 12 liter cases of blanco tequila per week. This is the tequila we will be using to fill this need. Not just in Mexican restaurants though, tequila rivals vodka these days in terms of calls for drinks nationwide. And tequila's growth in the spirits market continues to show unbelievable growth. Cantina Azul is the perfect tequila to sell in this market.
